Xi Jinping

Born 1953

Princeling: Yes

Mentors: Jiang Zemin
and Zeng Qinghong

The son of revolutionary hero Xi Zhongxun, Xi Jinping spent his early life growing up as a privileged “princeling” within the walls of the Zhongnanhai in Beijing. However, when his father was purged during the Cultural Revolution, Xi became one of some 30 million “sent-down” youth who were dispatched to the countryside.

Xi spent six years at an agricultural commune in Yanchuan County, Shaanxi before being accepted into the prestigious Tsinghua University in 1975. There, Xi studied chemical engineering and went on to serve as a personal secretary to the then-Minister of Defense Geng Biao.

Xi's early political career took him from his native province to Hebei and later Fujian, where he served as vice governor in 1999, before being promoted to governor a year later.

Women's Day

A total of 1.72 million men bought gifts for women during Mar.8th Women's Day. The gifts include beauty and spa vouchers, and also cinema tickets and kitchen supplies, according to the consumption records collected by Taobao. Fifty-three percent of the 1.72 million men are aged between 25 and 34. They spent 61 million yuan ($9.8 million) to buy gifts before International Women's Day. Meanwhile, data showed that men in Southeast China are more caring. In the top 10 cities with the biggest spending from men on gifts for women, 7 cities are located in South China and East China. Beijing is the only northern city included in the top 10 list. The report also found that more men are taking care of their appearance. A total of 1.25 million men bought male cosmetics in the last three months, up 40 percent year-on-year.
